

Lottie Holman O'Neil Outlines Her Campaign In Senatorial Race

Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neil has issued the following statement regarding her candidacy for Senator from the 41st senatorial district:

"In announcing my candidacy for the office of Senator from the 41st Senatorial District, I take occasion to call attention to some of the principles for which I have stood during my four terms in the Lower House of the Illinois Legislature. I believe that the desire to serve the people should be paramount to all other ambitions actuating any candidate for public office and my record will show that I have made every effort and sacrifice to live up to this ideal. I have endeavored at all times to deal frankly and fearlessly with every issue that has confronted me or been of interest to our people, whether it meant voting for measures or standing by ideals of government, or protesting practices which in my judgment seemed inimical to the best interests of the people at large.

"I have at no time profited personally from public office and am in no way obligated to prevent my acting for those interests which seem best for the people. I am not politically ambitious in the ordinary sense. I do not crave power or personal gain of any kind, but am actuated wholly by a desire to be of service. My campaigns have been conducted along lines laid down by the highest type of public servant and in a manner to merit the approval of those who believe in a representative form of government.

"I am opposed to the expenditure of large sums of money in campaigns believing that such practice is a barrier to the participation in government on the part of our financially less favored citizens. For that reason my campaign contributions and expenditures are made public, as was the case in my first campaign in 1922.

"During my four terms in the Legislature I have supported the programs of the agricultural interests and have their 100 per cent endorsement of my activities.

"The same applies to labor organizations of the district.

"I have secured refunds for property owners of Plainfield and of Lockport on state aid roads.

"The educational forces of the state have highly endorsed my legislative record.

"I introduced and secured passage of bill for state aid to crippled children, bill strengthening the school attendance law, secured an amendment to dower act which increases inheritance of the surviving spouse to one-third of real estate left by decedent; secured amendment to divorce and separate maintenance acts to correct certain abuses theretofore existing; favored bills providing funds for hard roads at the same time having in mind the desires of our people to avoid excessive taxation; introduced amendment to the motor vehicle act providing for 50 per cent decrease in auto license fees.

"I voted against and actively opposed the bill eliminating county area control of tuberculosis testing and placing it in the hands of the state.

"Have never been on any pay roll and have received no compensation other than that due me as a member of the legislature.

"I shall be glad to have an opportunity to meet the voters and explain in detail my activities in their behalf while their representative. It is impossible in the limited space of newspaper columns to explain the details of a legislative record covering four sessions.

TINLEY PARK GARDEN NOTES

—By—
Mrs. Trudie Swisher
Under The Snow.
The brown old earth lies quiet and still,
Under the snow.
The furrows are hid on the broken hill,
Under the snow.
Everything is fringed with mossy pear,
The drooping cedars bend to the ground,
The rose-bush is drifted into a mound,
And still from the silent sky to the ground
The white flakes noiselessly whirl.

John H. Bonnar
The last regular meeting of the Garden Club was held at Mrs. Frank Baldwin's home, Friday, Jan. 17, at 2 o'clock. The north wind blew, and the snow flakes flew, there was almost a full attendance. Our president, Mrs. R. J. Hug, was much pleased over this, as she had more business than a "Cranberry Merchant", to put before the club, on this particular afternoon. Plans centering around the Central States Garden and Flower Show, were discussed, and the following committees named: Mrs. W. Funk, chairman in charge.

Tables—Mrs. John Funk, chairman
Mrs. H. Mager, Mrs. C. Nielsen, Living Room Flower Arrangement
Mrs. H. Anderson, chairman
Mrs. Werth, Mrs. F. Mancke.
Shadow Box—
Mrs. H. L. Duff, chairman.
Mrs. J. E. Swisher, Mrs. F. Baldwin.

Gate—
Mrs. H. Brueggemann, chairman.
Mrs. L. Rogers, Mrs. E. Moss.

During the afternoon another interesting lecture by the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Corporation, was read. Mr. H. Humiston who represents this corporation held an interview with Mrs. R. J. Hug (President) and Mrs. E. Anderson, (Program chairman) offering his services as lecturer any time the club so desired. At the close of the business meeting, our hostess, Mrs. Frank Baldwin served delicious home made cake and hot chocolate. All members voted her a master hand on cake baking. Our next meeting will be with Mrs. John Boeyer at her home, Friday, February 7, 1930 at 2 p. m.

And now dear club members, have you heard the news? No?
The occasion is?
The place?
The time?

Yes, it's a lovely secret, but you see I've promised not to tell, just yet. Watch this paper and a later issue will let the cat out of the bag. You'll all be delighted.

What about the tardy verses for our memory books? Bring your's along next time, please.

The Niagara Girls Club held a very enthusiastic meeting last Thursday afternoon at Mrs. Swisher's home. Plans were made for several lovely surprises to be given to the old ladies of ward No. 9 at Oak Forest. Miss Jane DeVol was welcomed into the club as a new member. Remember we have changed our meeting day from the first Thursday of the month, to the first Tuesday of each month.

TRIANGLE CLUB NOTES

By Ben Argyle
The Triangle Basketball teams defeated Mokena's teams on Jan. 21st. The games were played in the new Mokena gym.

The Tinley Lights won by a score of 21 to 9, the Heavies score being 28 to 9.

You Haven't Forgotten? The date of our next dance, February 15. A big Valentine celebration.

Our next Club meeting will be January, 27 1930.

Feb. 25th Last Day For Filing Town Petition

With the abolishing of the old time caucus for nominating candidates for township officers this year, all candidates must file petitions with the town clerk in order to get their names on the ballot. The first date for filing is Jan. 31st and the last date is Feb. 25th. The town election will be held on Tuesday, April 1st, which will be April Fool's Day for some of the candidates.

"With this statement, and assuring the voters of the 41st district of my appreciation of their support and confidence during my four terms in the lower house of the General Assembly; standing on my voting record and my positions publicly taken on various occasions, I desire to announce my candidacy for the State Senate."

MOKENA P. T. A. ACTIVITIES

By Publicity Chairman,
Mrs. F. Braun
The regular monthly P. T. A. meeting will be held in the school auditorium, Tuesday evening, Jan. 28.

A good program has been outlined for this meeting. One feature will be a roundtable discussion, on "Child Welfare" led by Mrs. Arthur Hall.

Every P. T. A. member and anyone interested is most cordially invited to attend this or any other P. T. A. meeting.

Tune in W M A Q for the P. T. A. program directed by Mrs. Sharpless Fox, every Friday afternoon at 4:15 o'clock to 4:45.

Child Health Stations Open April First

The Cook County Child Health Stations in Oak Lawn, Orland Park and Worth will be discontinued for a short period on account of the weather and bad roads.

It is planned to open these stations again about April 1st. Will mothers in this vicinity please watch the newspaper for the date

Mokena Churches Conducting Survey

The four churches of Mokena are co-operating in a complete survey of the village and outlying territory. Maps are in the process of making showing location of the churches and their membership.

Every family in the community is being filed on an index card system which will be kept up to date as changes occur. Enrollment in the church schools and other organizations are being taken into account.

All the pastors are working in an attempt to have this survey completed in the next three weeks. The results will be compiled on a master sheet such as used by the churches in other suburbs of Chicago in making similar surveys.

Every family can help the workers in this survey by being ready to give accurate information when the card is brought to your home. No purpose is involved in this survey but the gathering of facts. When these facts are compiled they will be available to anyone who is interested.

Blue Island Man Shoots Wolf At New Lenox

A large gray timber wolf, which weighed 62 pounds was shot Monday by the Schroeder brothers of Blue Island, near the Brick Tavern Inn, a mile east of New Lenox.

Complaint had been made by Mrs. W. P. Flarity, who resides in the Inn, that wolves had been raiding her chicken house. Two chickens were killed Sunday and Monday afternoon a hunting expedition was organized by the Schroeder brothers.

The wolf was sighted in timber near the inn and killed.

New Lenox Farms Sold To Chicago Realtor

Further development of Will county farm properties into subdivisions was seen today with the purchase of 378 acres of land near the village of New Lenox by Arthur T. McIntosh, Chicago subdivider.

Mr. McIntosh has acquired four farms which practically adjoin the village of New Lenox and which will be subdivided this spring, some of the property into one, two and five acre tracts for chicken farms.

A tract of 196 acres, owned by Wayne and Mark McClure, south of New Lenox, was purchased for $200 an acre.

Another tract of 112 acres owned by Elizabeth and Catherine Gougar was acquired for $140 an acre. Fifty acres owned by August Osmus was purchased for $200 an acre. Twenty acres owned by George Barnes was acquired for $125 an acre.

All deals were handled thru the offices of the Oliver Realty co.

Election Notice

Certificates of nomination and nomination papers to be filed with Township Clerk at least thirty-five days previous to day of election. No certificates of nomination and nomination papers shall be filed more than sixty days prior to the day of election. January 31, first date of filing. February 25th last date for filing.

H. A. GEUTHER
Town Clerk

Hit By High Rate

Old members of the M. W. A. new rates are hitting them hard and many have dropped out. In Tinley one Modern Woodman who has been a member of the Tinley Camp for many years, holds a $3,000 policy, and at his age of 69 years the rate is $20.00 a month on the amount stated. The Tinley camp has not had a meeting for some time and has not had its annual election of officers.

FIRE DESTROYS 70 YEAR OLD TIN. LANDMARK

A historic Tinley landmark over 70 years old known as the old Tom Hopkins farm house, now owned by A. M. Uzemack was destroyed by fire Monday night of this week.

Mr. Uzemack and family with the exception of his daughter Bertha, had gone to Chicago. While alone at home Miss Uzemack heard a crackling sound and detected the odor of smoke. Upon investigation she discovered the house was afire. She ran to the Keleher home, a neighbor and Mrs. Keleher called the Tinley Park fire department who quickly responded with their chemical truck but they soon found the place was doomed. All the household goods on the lower floor was removed, but nothing could be saved from the upstairs. The house burnt down to the ground. The loss is said to be several thousand dollars partly covered by insurance in the Green Garden Fire Insurance company.

It is thought the fire was caused by an overheated stove.

HAROLD SIEMSON TAKEN BY DEATH

Harold Siemsen, aged 23 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Siemsen of Tinley Park, died at the latter's home Monday. He was taken ill around Thanksgiving time. About a week ago he came to his parents residence.

The departed was born January 29, 1907 in Tinley Park. In 1926 he was united in marriage with Miss Hazel Sippel, also of Tinley Park. He is survived by his widow, his parents, one brother Earl and one sister Coraetta.

Funeral services were held Thursday afternoon from the Zion Lutheran church in Tinley Park, Rev. A. Buddenhagen, officiating.

Taxpayers In Bremen Twp. Sign Petitions

The taxpayers of Bremen township are actively engaged in getting petitions signed pledging their support to fight the new property re-assessment valuations. A mass meeting was held Monday night at Oak Forest to line up for the fight against the new valuations.

It is reported that the 80 acres of Ed. Suhs near Tinley Park have been assessed at $10 an acre or a total of $800 for the 80 acres.

Orland Protests New Re-Assessment

When the village property valuations in Orland Park became known to the taxpayers last week there was a roar when it was found some property values had been increased at the rate of 3 times the former valuation. A meeting was held in the village hall Saturday night and petitions were circulated at once and the signatures of the property owners obtained protesting against the increased valuations, and these petitions have been filed with the Cook County Board of Review.

Farm Institute Now In Session

The 49th annual Will County Farmers' Institute is in session in Joliet this week, opening Thursday and will continue Friday and Saturday. The Institute is being held in the Joliet Chamber of Commerce building.

To Hold Tractor School In Tinley

A John Deere tractor school will be held at the Saenger hall, Tinley Park February 4th commencing at 9 a. m. and continuing thru to 5 p. m., Edward Henke, local J. Deere dealer at Tinley announces. A free lunch will be served at noon.

Any one interested in tractors is cordially invited to attend.

Tinley Legion Notes

On Monday evening January 20th the Post assembled for their regular meeting. A good deal of routine business had been disposed of and a new candidate, Harry Brandau, was about to be initiated when suddenly the fire siren interrupted the proceedings. Our gallant color bearer, Edward Henke, immediately left to get out the fire truck. The Legionnaires piled into whatever available autos were at hand and were the first to reach the fire being at the Uzemack farm. Upon their arrival a hasty survey was made to ascertain whether anyone might be trapped in the upstairs quarters. The fire truck made a record breaking run to the scene but it was soon evident that the fire was beyond control so every effort was made to save whatever household goods that could be carried out. After rendering what assistance they could the Legionnaires returned to their hall and resumed their meeting at the close of which they were served with coffee, cake and sandwiches, comrades Charles Wallin and Lester Stoltenberg, being the hosts of the evening.

Orland Park Buys Chemical Fire Truck

Orland Park will soon have an up-to-date fire fighting apparatus, the village board at a special meeting Monday night closing the deal with the Prospect Fire Engine Co., of Prospect, Ohio thru their representative F. F. Austin of Peoria for a chemical fire truck.

Mr. Austin came to Orland last fall and made the village board an offer whereby the financial end was taken care of. Mr. Austin with members of the board and other public spirited citizens made a campaign among the farmers adjoining Orland for pledges to apply on the chemical truck purchase. The understanding being that the farmers in the vicinity will be given aid by the Orland Park Fire Department in a case of fire.

At the meeting Monday, Mr. Austin reported $1250 in pledges from the territory around Orland and also $400 in pledges from residents in the village, making a total of $1650 to apply on the purchase price of $3500 for the truck, the balance to be paid by the village out of the annual budget over a period of five years, the first installment to be paid in 1931. Village attorney A. H. Krusemark was present at this meeting and conducted the legal end of it.

Trustee Henry Waje made a motion that the matter of buying the fire truck should be submitted to a vote of the people, but no second was forthcoming on his motion. The rest of the board members after being assured by attorney Krusemark that they could make annual appropriations to balance on truck, voted to purchase the outfit. The trustees voting to buy the chemical were: Fred Uthe, Wm. Kollmann, Edgar Cooper, I. A. Cleveland, Charles Hahenlein. Trustee Henry Waje did not vote.

The chemical is a triple combination pump, chemical and hose. The pump has 300 gallons capacity. There are two 40 gallon chemical tanks. Other equipment are one 28 ft. extension ladder, 14 ft. roof ladder, axes, crowbars, search light, and siren. The truck is mounted on a 1930 Chevrolet chassis.

The truck will be delivered very shortly.

Milk Men to Meet

The Mokena Local of the Pure Milk Association will hold a meeting and election of officers at the Frankfort hall Saturday afternoon of this week. Good speaking is on the program. All the members are urged to attend.

Tender Farewell To Pastor

Rev. D. C. Hennig and family of the Immanuel Lutheran church of Mokena, were invited to the Wm. Abbe home for supper Wednesday evening following which a surprise farewell service was held in the church in their honor. Rev. Mr. Hennig goes to Watseka. He is not taking a new church charge, but is going as a missionary worker. He will be chiefly engaged in the up-building of Lutheran churches.

To Hold Horse Sale

Henry F. Yunker, salesman for The Northwest Horse Sales Co., is going to hold a sale of 25 head of horses in the Boeckmann livery barn in Monee next Friday noon at 12:30. Schmaedeke and Erickson will cry the sale.

Why Print A Newspaper?

The merchant who says that everyone knows his place of business and that he doesn't have to advertise, can be found in almost every community in the country. This merchant also says that customers come to him when in need of goods, so why should he waste his money advertising? An answer to that question has been made by a newspaper whose advertising man no doubt stumbled into places of business where the owner possessed that frame of mind. This newspaper answered the question, "Why Should I Advertise?" as follows: "Of course, the newspaper man might say in rebuttal, 'Everyone in this community knows all that happens here, so what's the use of reporting the news; what's the use of printing a newspaper?' If the community can get along without a newspaper, it can get along without a number of other things which are of value. The adults are educated and can teach the children, thus doing away with the need of schools. The parents, being religious, can train the younger ones in the creeds, thus doing away with ministers and the churches. People can loan their money to one another and thereby eliminate banks. They can swap their old clothes or learn how to make home-spuns, thereby greatly reducing the expense and actually putting the clothing merchants out of business. All trade is based upon a desire for goods. Necessity is, mostly, an augmented desire. Advertising has the function of reminding people of their requirements, but its greatest function—a prime factor in all progress and prosperity—is the creating of new desires; thereby stimulating trade and production and making for the greatest possible degree of employment"

Radio Fans Hear the King

A few of the radio fans in the rural districts arose early enough on Tuesday morning to tune in on London and hear King George of England open the naval disarmament conference in the house of lords. All who tune in report a clear reception of this world wide history making event.

St. John's Mokena Church Notes

There will be regular church services on January 23 at 10:30 a. m., conducted in the English language. The sermon topic will be "Who Can Be Saved?". This is a very important question and everyone should be enlightened in this matter of salvation. Come to church Sunday and you surely will be benefited.

Sunday school session at 9:30 a. m. New classes have been arranged. A class of boys and girls have been promoted from the primary department into the Junior division and all classes are ready for diligent Bible study in the new year. There is a class for every age so that every member of a family may attend the Sunday school.

On Wednesday January 29 there will be a special meeting of the Church Council, both old and new members, for re-organization and to discuss denominational work pertaining to the general synodical budget. Rev. H. P. Vieth of St. Louis, Mo., Chairman of the budget board will be present and lead the discussion.

Confirmation school is conducted every Saturday morning at 9 o'clock.

Save A Promotion For Yourself

Do you know that most business men are on the lookout for young men who know the value of money?

In a large business organization where changes are always occurring, the individuals who are recognized and promoted are those who have their own bank account and are adding to it regularly.

If you want to be recognized and promoted, start a savings account with our bank and show that you know the value of money.

CHAPTER XII—Continued

Our overloaded cockshell with a crew of six was the smallest auxiliary cruiser in the war. For cruiser we were, and we were setting out to capture a ship, sail back to Mopelia, pick up our comrades there, and continue our raid. To find and take a ship on the high sea was a doubtful proposition, but we might get to some of the other islands, not too well populated and guarded, and find a vessel at anchor. We could board her at night, overpower the captain and crew, and sail off with her. We planned first of all to visit the Cook Islands, some eight hundred miles distant, and if we found no ship there, continue on another thousand miles farther to the Fiji Islands, where there were sure to be ships loading with copra for the ammunition factories of Europe. We figured on making around sixty nautical miles a day, so that, if we had to go all the way to the Fijis, it would take us approximately thirty days. Thus we should be back with a ship in three months at most.

We discussed our tactics thoroughly for the expected capture. We would steal aboard. Half-past three in the morning was the best hour. Men sleep their soundest then. A couple of us would go to the officers' cabins, the rest to the forecabin. We would show our pistols, disarm them, and herd them below. It would be good to sneak to their clothing first and take away their belts and snip the buttons off their trousers. Then, when you have them put on their clothes they stand, without belts, suspenders, or buttons, holding up their trousers. Thus they are helpless. We had a few bombs loaded only with powder, harmless, but capable of making a terrific noise. If there is any trouble, you throw one. It hurts nobody, but the terrible explosion creates a general panic. A couple of men with their heads about them can do wonders with dozens in a panic. Another good thing is to have a couple of fellows outside shout suddenly and make a great disturbance. That creates excitement and throws people off their guard. I said to my boys:

"Don't hurt anybody unless you have to. We don't want to spoil our clean record by killing anybody. But, by Joe, if a captain or a watchman raises a rifle or a pistol, don't wait till he shoots. Get him first!"

On a bright summer morning—August 23, 1917, to be exact—we all shook hands. There was no cheering, merely quiet, earnest words of friendship and good luck. It was the first time that we sixty-four seamen had parted since the Seeadler had set sail to run the blockade eight months before, and it was only now, at the moment of saying good-by, that we realized how closely attached to one another we had become. We who were going could see a brooding question in the eyes of those who were staying behind:

"How will that overloaded cockshell stand heavy weather?"

Never mind, we would probably find out soon enough. The understanding was that, if we did not return in three months, something had happened to us. They should wait for us until then. Afterward, Kling and his men were to get away from the atoll as best they could.

We sailed out of the lagoon, through the coral entrance, into the open sea. The bulk of the Seeadler lay there helpless on the reef. The tide was high, and the breakers swept over the coral. She was a red brown now from rust and weathering. Each flooding billow raised her a bit, and then she sank back hopelessly with loud groans and creaks of despair on the coral bed. As we passed her she seemed to call over to us:

"Come aboard, I want to take you on your voyage. Don't desert your old friend."

And as a wave raised her it seemed as though she were struggling to get on an even keel again and come to us, only to find that the coral held her in a relentless grasp. Tears filled our eyes.

"Good-by, Seeadler," I called; "perhaps we shall never see you more. And even if we do, you can never sail again. Nevermore will songs resound on your decks. Nevermore will you raise your sails and fly a flag from your masts."

A brisk wind carried us westward with a swelling of our sails. The happy island receded. The last German colony and the wreck of the Seeadler slowly dropped out of sight over the rim of the horizon.

Today the Seeadler still remains on the reef at Mopelia. After we had gone, Lieutenant Kling, afraid that the stumps of her mast might attract a passing warship, blew them out with dynamite. The explosion set a fire that burned away part of the woodwork. A quantity of ammunition still aboard blew up and cracked the forepart of the bulk.

CHAPTER XIII

From the Society Islands to the Cook Islands in an Open Boat.

It has been something of a sport of recent years to cross the Atlantic and even the Pacific in a small boat, sometimes under sail and sometimes under motor power. Tiny craft have done it, and at best it is not a comfortable kind of voyage. In sporting events, your ocean-going small boat always had a cabin, or an imitation of one. That is what we should have had, but we were not so lucky, and, besides, the load we carried made existence aboard our lifeboat that had been converted into a cramped affair indeed.

There was only one place we could trust to be dry, the buoyant air tanks at the sides of the boat. In these we packed our hardtack, a few pieces of clothing, photographic apparatus, and the all-important tobacco. It affected the buoyancy of our craft, but we had to keep some things away from the sea water. In the body of the boat were placed the water tanks, our large supply of weapons and ammunition, cordage for the rigging, and several spare sails. Canvas shields at the side, which could be drawn over at the top and be made to form some kind of tent, sheltered us somewhat from waves and dirty weather. Without these we should have been practically drowned. Four mattresses could be stretched on the bottom, where four men could sleep while two kept watch. As a concession to civilization, we had six pairs of knives and forks, six mugs, a coffee pot, and $5,000 in silver, gold, and paper, much of it in pounds sterling.

At six in the morning, the two men on watch filled the coffee pot and applied fire to it from a soldering lamp. With the slightest breeze and a rocking of the boat, it was impossible to bring the water to a boil. Then we were glad to get tepid coffee-bean soup instead of coffee. After toilets had been made with salty sea water, we squatted in the cockpit for breakfast of coffee and hardtack. Navigation was difficult in so small a boat. It was impossible to spread the charts out properly, and with the slightest carelessness the wind might take our priceless navigation papers overboard. We had to use the sextant and other navigation instruments in a boat that often pitched so much we could scarcely stand. The papers, charts, tables, logarithms, and so on, got sopping wet, and when we dried them in the sun they grew swollen and difficult to handle.

It was cool at night, but not unpleasant so long as our clothes were dry. The weather was fair, but an occasional whale would come alongside and douse us with the spray of his spout. Then, in our damp clothing, we felt the chill of the night. The days were broiling hot, but even while taking advantage of what little shade we had, we grew heavy and torpid. We had, above all things, to be careful of our water supply. We never dared drink enough to quench our thirst completely, and were, in fact, continually thirsty.

By way of amusement, we had readings aloud from the one book we had brought along, Fritz Reuter's comic story, "A Trip to Constantinople," and at night the squealer wheezed and blared, and we whistled away the tedious hours singing old German folk songs.

After three days we sighted Atiu, the first island of the Cook group and a British possession. There was no ship in sight. Too bad, but perhaps a ship might be expected soon. Anyway, we had to make port and get fresh food. Aside from the danger of storm, if our voyage continued for any length, we feared most of all beriberi and scurvy, which our diet of hardtack would inevitably bring upon us unless we varied it with fresh vegetables.

A crowd of natives, fine looking Polynesians, watched curiously as our little craft drew up to the dock. Kircheiss and I went ashore and straight to the house of the British resident. He lay stretched out in his shirt and trousers on a Borneo long chair on his porch, and didn't even get up when we approached. He was a good looking fellow, but lazy as the devil. The latitude of the South seas had certainly got him.

"My name is Van Houten," I began, "and this is my chief officer Southart."

Had Not Really Done Much to Relieve Him

"Have you given him anything or done anything to relieve him?" asked the young doctor, who had fared far into the backwoods to see a patient in the dead of a stormy night.

"Well, no, doc—that is to say, nothing," I said. "I said the wife of the patient. 'I had him soak his feet in almost boiling water with a lot of mustard in it, and I clapped a red-hot plaster on his back, and another one on his chest, and I've put a couple of blisters I had in the house under his arms, and a bag of cracked ice on the back of his neck, and I had him drink a pint of ginger tea just as hot as he could swallow it, and I followed that with some yarb bitters one of the neighbors sent over, and I had him take five or six pills out of a box I got one day from a man that came along with medicine to sell, and he's had three or four spoons of Quaker's pain-killer and one of these sideltz powders, but I didn't feel

The resident looked at me suspiciously. It was a true British mistrust. Ordinarily, your Englishman is the best of fellows, a pleasant chap to meet, a perfect host. But in wartime you had to admire them. They were on the lookout for everything. Their brains seemed made only of suspicions. Kircheiss, who spoke English better than I did, continued:

"We are Americans of Dutch birth. A few months ago we made a bet at the Holland club in San Francisco that we would sail from Honolulu in and open boat via the Cook Islands to Tahiti and back to Honolulu. The wager is for twenty-five thousand dollars. Would you, my dear sir, kindly give me a certificate that we have been here in accordance with the terms of our bet? Also, we should like to lay in a supply of fresh water, canned goods, and fresh fruit."

The resident yawned, looked us over with a watery eye and replied:

"Well, a man must be a hell of a fool to go in for that kind of sport."

"Sure," Kircheiss said politely, "but, just the same, we should like to have the certificate. Won't you give it to us or tell us who will?"

"Oh, to hell with you, don't bother me. I've just had dinner and want to take my nap."

Even his British mistrust, with which he first regarded us, subsided into the indescribable something that comes over a white man who yields to the soft enervation of the tropics. He now looked at us merely as mad fellows who wanted him to do something too crazy to merit his consideration.

"Any news from the bloody war?" he asked. "Why are they so stupid as to carry on with this fighting business? In the end, it will only help these yellow races."

He continued like this and spoke highly of the Germans. Naturally, we did not express any pro-German sentiments.

"We simply must get this old bird to give us that certificate," I said to my comrade in Low German, pretending that it was Dutch.

"Yes," he replied in the same dialect, "it may come in mighty useful later on."

The resident, as he told us, had served in the Boer war, and should have known better, but he took our Plattdeutsch for the language of Holland.

Presently he scribbled a note saying that we had called on him in the course of our sporting cruise.

"Any ships expected in port soon?" Kircheiss asked quite casually.

"How in hell do I know?" the resident responded wearily. "Everything goes to the bloody war, and we don't see anything around here but these Kanakas." He continued in this strain and curse his boredom on the island.

The resident was still rambling on in his lazy monotone when along came a man who wore a cassock and had a beard down to his waist. He was a French missionary priest who was overjoyed when we saluted him with a few words of French. The resident and an English trader were the only two white men on the island besides himself, and neither talked any French.

"Allons, allons," he shouted, "by Joe, boys, you must pay me a visit."

And straightway he seized our arms and took us over to his mission house. There he poured out glasses of excellent wine.

"You are Americans," he cried, "you fight for la France? You are Hollanders? Ah, it is too bad that your country is not in the war with France. But I can see that you love la belle France."

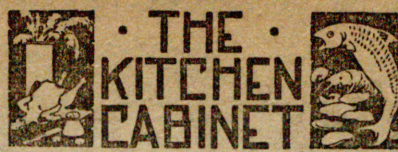

"What will be your next stop?" asked the jovial missionary in parting.

"I think we will put in at Aitutaki," I replied. That was the nearest island and the next field of action in our hunt for a ship.

"Fine," exclaimed the priest cordially. "I have a friend there. You must call on him. Just mention my name. He will be delighted to see you. He is a Hollander, too."

A Hollander, too? And our knowledge of the Dutch language was so strongly salted with a German accent! In that case, when we got to Aitutaki we certainly would be anything but Hollanders, probably Norwegians.

WHEN ENTERTAINING

There are so many dishes which may be prepared the day before, saving the time and nerves of the hostess that one should gather as many of such recipes together for time of need. Here are some suggestions:

Chicken Salad in Cracker Boxes.—Soak one teaspoonful of gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of water and dissolve in boiling water. Take twenty-four small square crackers and put four of them together in a box shape, open top and bottom. Set on lettuce lined plates and fill with chicken salad. Mix two cupfuls of finely cut chicken with an equal amount of fine celery, a few nuts and any salad dressing desired to moisten, using salt and cayenne to season. The gelatin is used to fasten the crackers together in the shape of boxes. The crackers are to be eaten with the salad.

Fruit Dessert.—To one-half pound of marshmallows cut fine add a can of shredded pineapple, with enough of the juice to moisten well; add to one pint of lemon gelatin and mold in small cups. Serve with whipped cream and chocolate wafers.

Jellied Tongue.—Take a tongue from the glass jar, and cut into thin slices. Prepare a jelly by soaking one tablespoonful of gelatin in one-fourth cupful of cold water and adding one cupful of boiling water in which has been dissolved a bouillon cube, salt and pepper to taste. Strain. Put the tongue into a shallow mold and when the jelly begins to thicken pour over the tongue. When ready to serve turn out on a platter and garnish with slices of sweet pickled cucumbers.

Pear Salad.—Drain a can of Bartlett pears, save juice and fill the centers with chopped celery mixed with mayonnaise and sprinkled with salted almonds. Make a french dressing with a bit of lemon juice, the pear juice and any good oil, beat well, add a teaspoonful of powdered sugar, salt and cayenne or paprika to taste. Arrange on lettuce.

Fruit Course.—Prepare casaba melon, removing the seeds and slicing in suitable portions for serving. Serve with quartered limes, sugar and powdered ginger.

Ways With Rabbit.

There are so many delicious and savory dishes that may be prepared from rabbit, wild or domesticated, and this is the season when they are most enjoyed.

Rabbit Pot Pie.—Cut three dressed rabbits into pieces for serving, flour them with well seasoned flour and fry in drippings until well browned. Fry one minced onion in one tablespoonful of butter, add the rabbit and two pints of boiling water, two slices of lemon, a little cayenne and more salt if needed. Cover closely and stew until tender. Prepare biscuits and place them on top of the meat, cover closely and cook twenty minutes. Serve the rabbit in the center of the platter with the biscuits around it.

Rabbit Fricassee.—Remove the meat from the bones of a rabbit, sear it in butter over a quick fire without browning. Cover with boiling water and let simmer until tender. Boil the stock down to a pint, add one tablespoonful of butter and flour blended together, one-half teaspoonful of celery salt, two teaspoonfuls of lemon juice, a teaspoonful of minced onion, salt and cayenne to taste. Add one cupful of hot cream and pour the sauce slowly over two well beaten eggs. Serve the meat in the center of the platter, pour the sauce around it and garnish with toast points and parsley.

Roast Rabbit With Chestnuts.—Clean and stuff a trussed rabbit with chestnuts. Use one cupful of the nuts, boiling them until tender, then mashing them to a paste, adding butter, a tablespoonful of cream, salt, pepper, nutmeg and lemon juice with three tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs. Mix and fill the rabbit. Roast until brown and tender, basting frequently.

Stewed and Larded Rabbit.—Wash and soak in salted water for several hours. Cut the rabbit into quarters and lard it with strips of firm salt pork, or bacon if preferred. Brown in a hot frying pan. Add two cupfuls of stock to the rabbit, a bunch of savory herbs, two tablespoonfuls of butter, pepper and salt and simmer until the meat is tender. Strain the gravy, thicken it and serve poured over the rabbit.

Rabbit Soup.—Skin, dress and wash the rabbit, cut it into serving-sized pieces, dust with a little flour. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter or sweet fat, add the rabbit and an onion cut into slices, fry a light brown. Stir in two tablespoonfuls of flour, add the liver of the rabbit and three and one-half pints of stock. Simmer until tender. Remove the large bones and serve with carrots and potatoes.

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Read proven directions for neuralgia, for rheumatism and other aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless to the heart.

How A College Athlete Keeps Himself Well

Bob Deming of Colgate, claims that a sensible method of health has really made life a pleasure for him. Mr. Deming writes that at first he could not believe this simple thing was the cause of his buoyant spirits. Finally, however, he had to admit that it was Nujol which was keeping him well, besides giving him, as he says, "five times the vitality."

Robert O. Deming, Colgate University Swimming Team.

"Believe me," he says "having free and regular bodily elimination makes all the difference in the world to a diver as well as to any other athlete. I can't afford to be nervous, sluggish, or depressed while diving. It just isn't done! I would like to urge any one, whether they think they are in good health or not, to give Nujol a try-out. It certainly can't do any harm, and I'll bet it would make them feel a hundred percent better. It's worth trying!"

Mr. Deming has just about told the whole story. He is right in believing that Nujol contains no drugs, no medicines of any kind. It is tasteless and colorless as pure water. It is simply harmless internal lubrication, which your body needs as much as any other machine. Regularly as clockwork, Nujol cleans out of your body those poisons which we all have, and which make us low in our minds, tired, headachy, and below par.

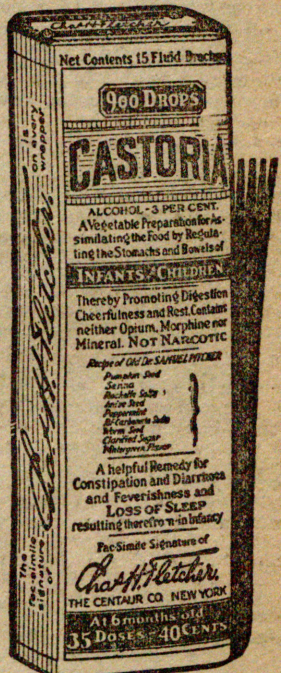

The way for you to find out how much better Nujol will make you feel is to try it for a few days. You can get a bottle in a sealed package at any drug store. It costs only a few cents, but it makes you feel like a million dollars. Do you know how many thousands of people keep themselves well and happy just by using Nujol? Why shouldn't you feel well all the time? You can! Get yourself a bottle of Nujol today!

Persons who have speed frequently have nothing else. They move fast because they are light weights. An exclusive literary diet of detective stories doesn't teach you anything about human nature.

The upsets of Children

All children are subject to little upsets. They come at unexpected times. They seem twice as serious in the dead of night. But there's one form of comfort on which a mother can always rely; good old Castoria. This pure vegetable preparation can't harm the tiniest infant. Yet mild as it is, it soothes a restless, fretful baby like nothing else. Its quick relief soon sees the youngster comfortable once more, back to sleep. Even an attack of colic, or diarrhea, yields to the soothing influence of Castoria. Keep Castoria in mind, and keep a bottle in the house—always. Give a few drops to any child whose tongue is coated, or whose breath is bad. Continue with Castoria until the child is grown! Every drugstore has Castoria; the genuine has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper.

The Highest Priced Autograph on Record

Handiwork of President Hoover

He Wrote His
on a Tree!

VISITORS at the White House, since Herbert Hoover became President, have often commented upon the fact that while the Chief Executive listens to what they have to say he busies himself with a pencil, drawing a series of various geometrical designs upon scraps of paper. Usually, when the interview is concluded, he crumples up the paper and tosses it into a wastebasket. Recently, however, one visitor rescued such a paper from the basket and asked the President to autograph it, which he smilingly did. He probably did not realize that this scrap of paper had any particular value, but the result was that the visitor sold it for what is described as "a fair portion of the Presidential salary." It now holds an honored place in the collection of Thomas F. Madigan of New York, an authority on autographs, who says it is the most unusual signature ever to come out of the White House.

But this is only one of the many interesting items which have passed through Mr. Madigan's hands during his long career as autograph collector and dealer. The fruit of that career is a book, published recently by the Frederick A. Stokes company, to which he has given the appropriate title of "Word Shadows of the Great" with a subtitle which tells of "The Lure of Autograph Collecting." Autographs are truly "word shadows," reflecting the personalities of the men and women who wrote them and often revealing their very souls and for this reason autograph collecting is one of the most fascinating hobbies known to mankind.

What American would not be thrilled to have in his possession a letter written by George Washington, or by Thomas Jefferson, by Andrew Jackson or by Abraham Lincoln or some other great man? Yet many such letters, often throwing new light on some important event in our history, have been in Mr. Madigan's possession before they became enshrined in the collection of some autograph enthusiast. For instance, there is the letter written by Washington to Governor Clinton of New York from his headquarters at Morristown, at a time when the dawn was just beginning to break for the great commander of the Continental army after five dark years of what seemed at times a hopeless struggle. It was glorious news which this letter bore, news that the long-hoped-for aid from the French was soon to come, and it is easy to imagine Washington's elation as he penned these lines:

Morristown, May 18th, 1780.

Dear Sir:

I have the happiness to inform your Excellency, that the Marquis De La Fayette has brought the interesting intelligence of a French fleet & army which was to sail from France early in April for the Continent, to co-operate with us. He is gone on to Congress, and measures will, it is to be hoped, be immediately taken by them to put ourselves in a situation to derive the advantage from this success, which with proper exertion, we have a right to expect.

You will be sensible that there will be a necessity for the concurrence of the Legislatures of the different States in providing men and supplies. As I am informed your Assembly is now sitting, and may probably be about rising; as the determination of Congress may not arrive in time to prevent its adjournment, I have thought it proper to give this intimation in confidence that you may keep them together. If they once separate it will be impossible to reassemble them in time to answer our purposes; and it is of infinite importance that they should be assembled.

As this anticipates Congress, it is of course only intended for your private information, and is not to be officially made use of to the Assembly.

In the intended co-operation, to whatever point it may be directed, we shall stand in need of all the Continental force we can collect. On this principle, I wish to have the regiment at Fort Schuyler relieved; and shall be glad your Excellency will be pleased to order two hundred and fifty men, of the 800 raised by permission of Congress, as speedily as possible, to that Post. I propose to leave Lieut. Col. Van Dyke, and some good Sergeants in the garrison to arrange the New Corps, & perform the duties with vigilance and propriety. It is my wish that the officer who commands the 250 men should be inferior in rank to Lt. Col. Van Dyke, as he is, I am told, an attentive diligent officer, and the command may be safely reposed in him.

I am with the greatest respect & affection,
Yr. Excellency's Most Obedt. &
Hble. Servt.
G. WASHINGTON.

His Excellency,
Govr. Clinton.

"Had I never read the inspiring story of Lincoln's progress from the log cabin to the White House, I believe I could still obtain a just conception of his immortal character from his letters," says Mr. Madigan. Few letters of Lincoln are more reflective of his simple modesty and sound judgment than the letter written during his single term as member of congress. The letter to which he refers reads:

Washington
Feb. 13, 1843.

Dear Hewitt:
Your Whig representative from Mississippi, P. W. Tompkins, has just shown me a letter of yours to him. I am jealous because you did not write to me. Perhaps you have forgotten me. Don't you remember a long black fellow who rode on horseback with you from Tremont to Springfield nearly ten years ago, swimming your horses over the Mackinaw on the trip? Well, I am that same old fellow yet.

I was once of your opinion, expressed in your letter, that presidential electors should be dispensed with; but a more thorough knowledge of the causes that first introduced them has made me doubt. These causes were briefly these. The Convention that framed the Constitution had this difficulty; the small states wished to so form the new Government as that they might be equal to the large ones regardless of the inequality of population; the large ones insisted on equality in proportion to population. They compromised it by basing the House of Representatives on population and the Senate on States regardless of population; and the executive on both principles, by electors in each state equal in number to her senators and representatives. Now, throw away the machinery of electors and the compromise is broken up and the whole yielded to the principle of the large States. There is one thing more. In the slave states you have representatives, and consequently, electors, partly upon the basis of your black population, which would be swept away by the change you think desirable. Have you ever reflected on these things?

But to come to the main point. I wish you to know that I have made a speech in Congress and that I want you to be enlightened by reading it; to further which object I send you a copy of the speech by this mail.

For old acquaintance, if for nothing else, be sure to write me on receiving this. I was very near forgetting to tell you that on my being introduced to Genl. Quitman and telling him I was from Springfield, Illinois, he at once remarked "Then you are acquainted with my valued friend Hewitt of Natchez," and on being assured I was, he said just such things about you as I like to hear said about my own valued friends.

Yours as ever,
A. LINCOLN.

It is doubtful if the "long, black fellow" who writes thus modestly of himself realized at the time that in less than twenty years he would be enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen. Certainly, he would have been the most surprised person in the world if some one had told him that three-quarters of a century after he wrote that letter, it would be sold for more than $300.

Considerable space was devoted in New York newspapers recently to the fact that a New York collector of Americana had acquired an extensive collection of letters by John Adams, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, James Monroe, John Quincy Adams and others. The most important were sixteen Jefferson letters, only four of which had ever been published. The concluding paragraphs of the half-column newspaper story about these letters reads as follows:

One of the letters which has been published is one of the most interesting that has ever passed through the hands of Mr. Madigan during his twenty-five years in the autograph business, he said. In a few sentences Mr. Jefferson clarified whatever doubt may have been in the mind of his correspondent about the authorship of the Declaration of Independence. In part, Jefferson wrote:

"Your statements of the corrections of the Declaration of Independence by Dr. Franklin and Mr. Adams are neither of them at all exact. I should think it better to say generally that the rough draught was communicated to these two gentlemen, who, each made 2 or 3 short verbal alterations only, but even this is laying more stress on mere composition than it merits; for that alone was mine; the sentiments were of all America."

While it would seem that the autograph letters of the earlier Presidents would bring higher prices than those of the later executives, such is not always the case. For the typewriter has had its influence on autograph hunting. Washington's and Lincoln's voluminous correspondence was all handwritten, but the letters of the last three or four Presidents have been dictated to stenographers, written on the typewriter and one cannot always be sure whether the signature at the bottom of the letter is by the President himself or by some secretary or clerk. One of the rarest of all autograph collector's items, it is said, is a letter written in long hand by Warren G. Harding, and a similar one by Calvin Coolidge is nearly as rare. Being rare, they therefore command a price which will equal that asked for the letters of some of the earlier Presidents and compare favorably with the prices of Washington and Lincoln letters. At a recent sale a Washington letter brought $150, the same price that was paid for a Harding letter in the President's own handwriting.

But when the matter of price in connection with autographs is mentioned, there is one classic example which overshadows all other valuable signatures. The man himself was comparatively unknown to most Americans until the signature broke all autograph price records. True, he was a signer of the Declaration of Independence, but it might be possible to get a complete set of autographs of the signers (with the exception of this one man) if you were willing to pay from $500 to $2,000 for it. But if you wish to make it complete by adding the name of Button Gwinnett of Georgia to the names of the other 55, it may cost you from $30,000 to $50,000 more.

For the signature of Button Gwinnett is one of the rarest of all known autographs, there being not more than twenty known to be in existence and of this number not more than half a dozen have ever been available for purchase by collectors. The reason that there are not more is due to the fact that he was killed in a duel in 1777, about a year after his signing the Declaration made him one of America's immortals.

Back in 1886, according to Mr. Madigan, a Button Gwinnett autograph sold for only $185. But that was long before autograph collecting became so popular and took on a "big business" tinge. Forty years later, on January 19, 1926, Col. James H. Manning offered at auction his complete set of autographs of the signers and his Button Gwinnett signature (as a witness to a will), the first ever sold at a public sale, brought $22,500. The total collection realized the sum of $46,689. In May of the same year another Gwinnett from the Dr. George C. F. William collection sold for $19,000 and a "cut out" signature brought $10,500. But that was just the beginning of the Gwinnett boom. Not long afterwards Mrs. Arthur W. Swann of New York, who had read of those prices, remembered that she had inherited some old letters from her ancestors and had stored them carefully among some old sheet music and books in a closet. She began to investigate and found among the letters the "third bond" mentioned in the records of the Gwinnett estate by its executor. This signature sold for $23,500.

But the end was not yet. In March, 1927, a letter, signed by Button Gwinnett and five other signers of the Declaration, was sold for $51,000! It was the first letter ever found bearing the Gwinnett signature, the other examples of his autograph being from official documents. This letter was found by John Cecil Clay of New York among a mass of old papers that had been stored in an outbuilding at Mamaroneck for many years. Hearing of the high prices being paid for Gwinnett signatures, he remembered that there was one among the papers stored on his property. So he went through them until he discovered the precious document. And two days after the discovery the building in which the autograph had remained so long took fire and burned to the ground!

But talk of such sky-high prices does not mean that it is impossible for the average person to obtain autographs of famous people if he so desires. The signatures of any number of celebrities—Presidents, generals, authors, poets, actors, statesmen, sculptors, artists, singers, inventors, explorers, etc.—can be obtained anywhere from 50 cents each to $5.00 and it is possible to buy letters which they have written from $1.50 up to $25 or $50, depending upon the historic interest which the letters contain and the rarity of such letters. For those are the two factors which usually determine the value of an autograph.

It is not often that a celebrity "cashes in" on the value of his autograph while he is still living. Yet that was true of two famous Indian chiefs, Sitting Bull of the Sioux and Geronimo of the Apaches. After Sitting Bull had returned from his exile in Canada in the '80s he learned to write his name and upon joining Buffalo Bill's Wild West show did a thriving business selling his autographs for $1.50 apiece. Geronimo, the Apache leader, also learned to print his name after his days on the warpath were over, and at the World's fair in St. Louis in 1904 he was kept busy printing his signature for 25 cents cash. Capt. Jack Crawford, the "Poet Scout," who guided some of the soldiers when they were trying to round up the Apaches in the old days, tells with some amusement of visiting Geronimo at St. Louis and how the old chief, upon seeing Crawford in the crowd, promptly suggested that the price to him would be 50 cents.

The autograph of the third Indian (shown above) is of special interest because of his insistence upon prefixing the word "Christian" to his name whenever he wrote it. Naiche (or Natchez) was the hereditary chief of the Chiricahua Apaches and a lieutenant of Geronimo in the long series of Apache wars in the Southwest. But after he surrendered and was settled down as a prisoner of war at Fort Sill, Okla., he accepted the Christian religion and took great pride in this evidence that he was "traveling the white man's road." In that connection it is interesting to note that just a short time before he wrote the autograph reproduced above he discovered that the elder of his two wives was jealous of the younger. So to cure her he shot her through the knees—a somewhat curious manifestation of Christian spirit!

Clean Kidneys By Drinking Lots of Water

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate, thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus often avoiding serious kidney disorders.

ANTIQUE FURNITURE IN "MODERN"

Furniture needs not to be really old to create "the atmosphere" familiar to our Colonial forebears. A striking example of the successful use of modern antiques is found in the new dining room recently installed as adjunct to the model kitchen in the plant of Libby, McNeill and Libby in Chicago. Ceilings are beamed, floors patched, casement windows leaded exactly as they used to be when great-grandmother was a slip of a girl. However, the Yorkshire rush bottom chairs, trestle table, quaint Welsh dresser but simulate age. Artistic as is this dining room it serves a thoroughly practical purpose. Around its trestle table to guests of discriminating taste are served the delectable dishes which Mary Hale Martin, home economics expert concocts. (Herbert Photos, New York)

TWO OF WORLD'S COSTLIEST FOUNTS

The luxury and beauty of the 18th century Court of the French Kings at Versailles has never been equalled by any other nation or dynasty. Architects, Landscape Gardeners, Painters and Decorators had only to visualize their most elaborate dreams to the Bourbon's of the 18th century in order to have the public coffers of France open to them that their dreams might become palaces in fact—playgrounds of unheard of beauty for the whims of the King's favorites. The beautiful fountains at Versailles, shown above, built by Louis XIV of France for the amusement of his notoriously extravagant Court are the most famous, but not the most expensive nor the most extravagant of fountain displays in the world: that unfortunate distinction is reserved for the fountains that are seen from coast to coast in the United States during the winter months, flowing so violently from the frozen radiators of a large number of the more than twenty million automobiles in this country. These are created by the carelessness of the American motorists and are maintained from the first to the last freeze. Extravagance for beauty's sake does not justify extravagance for waste's sake; whereas the French Republic feels it can afford to display the gorgeous jets at Versailles but a few minutes each year, the careless American Motorist runs his for five or six months—if Alcohol were put in all radiators before the first freezing weather and kept to a high enough percentage to avoid freezing all winter, millions of dollars would be saved. In fact it is estimated that $2,500,000.00 is expended on repairing the havoc wrought by frozen radiators and those clogged with inferior anti-freeze mixtures, while less than 10% of that amount spent on "Freezing Insurance" in the form of Alcohol, would have prevented this unnecessary and extravagant outlay by the automobilists of this country. ## The Rose Garden Club Sleigh Party

By Mrs. H. D. Robbins

I may not be an artist
But you'll admit this isn't bad,
For writing poems and such things
Experience I've never had.

So listen and I'll tell to you
A story short and sweet,
Of a bob sled party the other night
And the bunch, Oh they can't be beat.

'Twas on one wintery evening
'Twas Sunday night I know,
'Cause January twelfth, if you remember
The ground was covered with snow.

The crowd was large and happy,
I think there were seventeen,
All piled and packed in a bob sled,
Pulled by a big black team.

We started out at seven,
And stopped for every one;
And then by eight I must relate
The party just begun.

We drove over icy highways
With our lunch piled under the seat,
For we knew at the end of the journey
We would all be ready to eat.

Now I will tell you the names
Of the bunch that was rear'n to go
With their songs and witty stories—
For our husbands were with us you know.

First, there was Mrs. Combs,
Our president great and small,
When tucked under coats and blankets,
You couldn't see her at all.

But Mrs. Hawks you remember
Sat by her side in the sled,
While Mrs. Shultz and her husband
Were the life of the party, 'twas said.

And then Mrs. Shanz and her daughter,

Erna, if I'd right when I say,
Sat beside Mrs. Hicks and her daughter
And Mr. Harris, her fiancé.

Mrs. Deever we mustn't forget
Sat up by the driver's seat,
While June Johnson, our little guest,
Sat by me with no place for her feet.

But then last and all were the men
Folks
Who hung on the side of the sled;
Mr. Robbins sat up with the driver,
Leonard Fulton, our chauffeur,
'twas said.

Now on over hills and valleys,
And at railroad tracks you all know,
The driver would stop, look and listen
For the trains that go none too slow.

There were cars parked along the highways—
Out of gas I imagine for fun;
But the Garden Club party kept going,
Especially the Rose Chapter one.

Well it didn't take long to get there
At our president Combs's estate;
We could smell the coffee a boiling,
Just as we turned in the gate.

The house was all aglow
With the lights all shining so bright;
We all had our coffee and sandwiches
And everything tasted all right.

Then Mr. Combs passed the cigars,
And the men all enjoyed their smokes.

While Mrs. Combs with her charm
Passed candy to the women folks.

Well this is the last of my story,
I know you will agree I'm right;
We all had a wonderful evening
And now I will say GOOD NIGHT

HOOVERS GATHER

HISTORIC ARTICLES

The President and Mrs. Hoover are treasure hunting in the basement, attic and storeroom of the White House. They are searching for articles of historic interest laid aside or forgotten during the long years of the Executive Mansion has housed Presidential families. Among the most valuable articles found are four chairs used by President Lincoln in his office. These were identified from a painting made of Lincoln and his cabinet and are easily recognized. They have again been placed in the room where Lincoln used them and which President Hoover now uses as his study. The desk upon which the Emancipation Proclamation was signed is also in this room where the famous document was signed by the President further effort to the fight for the Illinois Waterway. His particular Martyred President.

CARLSTROM AIDS WATERWAY

Attorney-General Oscar Carlstrom came to the Capital Thursday to lend further effort to the fight for the Illinois Waterway. His particular mission was to iron out legal questions that are involved. He met the Illinois Senators and members of the Illinois delegation in Congress during the morning before going to the White House for a session alone with the President. In the afternoon General Carlstrom had a conference with Secretary of War Hurley. The Attorney-General had prepared a

"Synopsis of Law and Facts in Re Illinois Waterway", copies of which were distributed among members of the Illinois delegation.

SENATE ASSIGNMENTS

Senators Deneen and Glenn retained membership on ten important Senate committees between them in spite of the recent shakeup. Senator Deneen is chairman of the group controlling Senate expenses and is a member of Committees on Commerce, Finance, Judiciary and Manufactures. He is on the Commerce subcommittee on Flood Control. The tariff and other revenue bills come under Finance and the appointment of federal judges is approved by the Judiciary. Senator Glenn is on appropriations, claims, interstate commerce, privileges and elections, and public lands and surveys.

CHINA LIKES U. S. TALKIES

Chinese movie fans are going over to the "talkies" in large numbers. And they do not seem to mind the fact that English dialogue is used in all pictures. That is the word given out by the Department of Commerce last week. Since there are many diverse dialects in the Chinese language, English is frequently used there as a medium and is widely taught in the schools. Censorship of sound pictures has produced a new problem, but officials in Shanghai found that small cuts in the film do not materially effect the synchronization.

STATE CAPITOL NEWS

Hiram L. Williamson, Secretary Illinois Prose Association

Activities of the federal farm board, forestry, grain marketing and boys' and girls' clubwork in agriculture, will be among the numerous subjects to be discussed at the Illinois Farmers' Institute to be conducted in Galesburg February 18-20. Gov. Louis L. Emmerson has accepted an invitation to speak at this meeting, in the joint session of farmers and household science workers on the evening of February 18. The subject has not been given out, but will be of special interest to farmers of Illinois, it is announced. A representative of the federal farm board will be heard on the evening of the second day, as will also Rodney H. Brandon, director of the state department of public welfare. W. H. Settle, president of Indiana Farm Bureau federation, and chairman of the grain marketing committee of the federal farm board, will speak on "Grain Marketing" and a prominent speaker will be secured to discuss live stock marketing. Specialists of recognized standing will talk about 4-H clubwork, forest promotion, menace of weeds, seed certification, breeding corn for cold resistance, feeding live stock, and topics of interest to home-makers.

Allen T. Lucas of Chandlerville, historian of the Lincoln National Memorial Highway association for Illinois, broadcasting recently from station WLS, Chicago, discussed the plan and purpose of this organization. Briefly he reviewed the high spots in the life of Lincoln until his coming to Springfield. The Lincoln Highway association, he stated, was organized February 27, 1929, in Springfield, to encourage and assist the federal and state governments in constructing a hard road from Hodgenville, Ky., to Beardstown, Ill., following the general route of the Lincoln family in their migration from Kentucky to Illinois, and touching the most important points identified with the early life of Lincoln. The last session of the legislature authorized a survey of the route and collection of data, which are in the hands of the department of public works and buildings. As soon as the route is definitely located in Illinois, said the speaker, a bill will be introduced in congress seeking the necessary appropriation for constructing the road on a fifty-fifty basis, and Kentucky and Indiana will ask for similar legislation. The bills are expected to pass without difficulty. "When this road is completed," declared Mr. Lucas, "it will be the world's most noted highway, and a living monument and a tribute to the memory of America's greatest son."

"Business is less active just now and there appears to be no present prospect for a considerable improvement until the country has had time to absorb the financial and industrial production of recent months." This conservative appraisal by Joseph E. Otis, chairman of the board, Central Trust company, Chicago, appears in the current issue of the Illinois Bankers' association bulletin, and is part of the regular semi-annual survey, for distribution to banks. The survey includes agriculture, industry, employment, credit and collections, bank deposits and the social and economic situation, and is based on investigation and reports by bankers in each county. The report says: "On the whole, both our financial and our commercial structures are so firm and so well knitted that banking and business can be said to be in a sound condition. Reports of gross earnings, net profits and dividend distribution so far available for 1929 show that, in all three, a new high volume has been established. Nothing in the present business situation provides more satisfaction than the improvement, however slight, which has been, and is, taking place in the agricultural industry. The cash value of the fifty principal crops is placed at $8,580,528,000, an increase of nearly $85,000,000 over last year. The short crops of 1929 are still large enough for our needs, and the better prices which have resulted, and which promise to continue, have already lightened the farmer's load, with the result that a mild spirit of optimism is appearing in the agricultural areas."

Dr. Herman M. Adler, of Chicago, state criminologist and director of the Institute of juvenile research, having tendered his resignation to Governor Emmerson, Dr. Paul Schroeder of Chicago, who for years has been Doctor Adler's first assistant, was named to succeed him. Dr. Adler goes to the University of California at Berkeley, to accept a professorship of psychology.

The campaign for early discovery of tuberculosis among children will be one of the large projects undertaken by the Illinois Tuberculosis Public Health association and its 101 affiliated county organizations early in 1930. This campaign is financed by the annual Christmas Seal sale. A year ago, state and nation-wide effort was to prevent and discover tuberculosis in adults. This year the purpose is to remind people that the most effective preventive measures should be taken during the period of latency in children.

Of the many petitions for rehearing before the Supreme court at the February term, the one filed with Charles W. Vail, clerk of the court, in re Jenkins, et al. vs. Talbot, et al., known as the Modern Woodmen Injunction proceeding, is probably of the greatest interest. Since the decision in this case, December 20, Mr. Vail's office has received requests for copies of the opinion from practically every state.

Congressman William E. Hull of Illinois recently delivered in the house a notable speech on the "Lakes-to-Gulf Waterway and the Levels of the Great Lakes." He expressed doubt that lake levels are the real bone of contention, when they could be restored so easily and cheaply, and suggested that commercial supremacy is probably the real issue.

Senator Clarence F. Buck, of Monmouth, will soon announce his candidacy for the Republican nomination for state treasurer. Because of ill health, which has necessitated several operations, Senator Harry G. Wright, of DeKalb, has announced his withdrawal from the race.

A bill introduced in congress proposes regulation of motor busses engaged in interstate traffic by the Interstate Commerce commission. Members of the Illinois Commerce commission have been urged by Chicago alderman to direct carriers of that city to furnish feeder bus service in various sections and to give its aid in settling Chicago's traction middle.

W. P. Shanahan, formerly director of field work of the Indiana State Tuberculosis association, has accepted the position of executive secretary of the Illinois Tuberculosis and Public Health association, effective February 1. Miss Alpha Rodenberger, who has been acting as executive secretary since the death of Mrs. Jayne B. Kerr on July 15, 1929, will resume her duties as director of field service.

Mrs. Addie DeFrates, Springfield's famous flag maker, recently passed her seventy-eighth birthday and received congratulations of many friends. She made flags of lace, which she herself dyed, and presented them to such notables as President Woodrow Wilson and Gov. Frank O. Lowden, and to Company C. I. N. G. Her flag was hoisted by the boys of the company on the battlefield in sight of the enemy on Armistice day.

H. W. Fay, custodian of Lincoln's tomb, has received a letter from Lawrence Richey, secretary to President Hoover, expressing the President's thanks for a photograph of Abraham Lincoln. President Hoover sent a wreath last Memorial day to be placed on Lincoln's tomb, and Mr. Fay sent the picture in acknowledgment.

At the show of the State Poultry association, held at Harrisburg, the Governor Emmerson trophies were awarded as follows: J. W. Ferkel, Belleville, best display; Henry Parola, Herrin, best display in junior division. James Graham, West Frankfort, coal miner, won the grand championship with a Barred Plymouth Rock cockerel in competition with a thousand birds.

A. L. Bowen, superintendent of charities in the state department of public welfare, has been appointed by Governor Emmerson as the official representative of Illinois to participate in the first international congress on mental hygiene, which is to be held at Washington, D. C., May 5 to 10.

For the second consecutive year, the Illinois state checker championship went to Basil Case, of Chicago, when he won the tournament held at Ashland. Ray E. East of Ogden was runner-up, while Frank E. Wendemuth of Chicago and Harland Richards of Springfield finished in a tie for third place.

Col. Charles Burnett, United States army, of Springfield and Carlville, accompanied by Mrs. Burnett, is in London under commission from the State department as a military attaché at the international disarmament conference in the British metropolis. Having served as military attaché to the American embassy in Japan for a long period, Colonel Burnett has become known as a diplomat as well as soldier.

A bulletin of the Illinois Chamber of Commerce states that a report has been issued by the Chicago Better Business bureau on "Aviation Instruction Facts." The report has been prepared for the benefit of prospective students of aviation, contains a brief outline of aviation training conditions, and is based on inquiries from hundreds of prospective students. The report is valuable as a source of information and comment, says C. G. Ferris, chamber of commerce executive vice president.

Owners of automobiles and trucks in Illinois spend about $200,000,000 a year for gasoline. This is the surprising estimate made by Leo H. Lowe, state director of trade and commerce, from data compiled by the newly established division of oil inspection.

The state health department cannot correct birth certificates to take cognizance of the legitimation of an illegitimate child, nor issue a special certificate in the family name of the father of the child, Attorney General Carlstrom has ruled.

Lesson for January 26

STANDARDS OF THE KINGDOM

LESSON TEXT—Matthew 5:1-48

(Print vv. 3-9, 17-20, 43-48).

GOLDEN TEXT—Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—How Jesus Teaches Us to Live.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus' Standard of Life and Service.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Accepting and Following the Highest Ideals.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Christian According to Christ.

I. The Characteristics of the Subjects of the Kingdom (vv. 1-12). These characteristics are set forth in the nine beatitudes.

1. The consciousness of spiritual poverty (v. 3).

"Poor in spirit" means to come to the end of self in a state of spiritual beggary.

2. A profound grief because of the spiritual insolvency (v. 4).

The mourning here is because of the keen consciousness of guilt before a holy God.

3. A humble submission to God's will (v. 5).

This is the outgrowth of mourning over spiritual insolvency.

4. An intense longing to conform to the laws of the kingdom (v. 6).

The one who has received the righteousness of Christ as a free gift follows after the purity of character which expresses itself in deeds of righteousness.

5. Merciful (v. 7).

The subjects of the kingdom now take on the character of the King. Because of the mercifulness of Christ, His followers will be merciful.

6. Purity of heart (v. 8).

Since the King is absolutely pure, the subjects who enjoy fellowship with Him must have heart purity.

7. Peacemakers (v. 9).

The subjects of His kingdom not only have peace, but follow after that which makes for peace.

8. Suffering for Christ's sake (v. 10).

The world hated Christ, the King; therefore those who reflect His spirit in their lives shall suffer persecution (II Tim. 3:12).

9. Suffer reproach (v. 11).

To have all manner of evil spoken against us for Christ's sake is an occasion for glorying.

II. The Responsibilities of the Subjects of the Kingdom (vv. 13-16).

The world is in utter darkness because of its corruption. The subjects of the kingdom are to live such lives as to purify and enlighten. Their responsibilities are set forth under the figures of salt and light.

1. Ye are the salt of the earth (v. 13).

The properties of salt are (1) Penetrating, (2) Purifying, (3) Preserving. Since salt only preserves and purifies in the measure that it penetrates, so Christians only as they enter into the life of the world can preserve it from decay.

2. Ye are the light of the world (v. 14).

This world is cold and dark. In this darkness the devil has set many pitfalls, and the subjects of the kingdom should so live as to prevent the unwary from stumbling.

III. The Laws of the Kingdom (vv. 20-48).

1. As to deeds of righteousness (v. 20).

The deeds of the subjects of the kingdom must spring from Christlike natures.

2. As to sanctity of life (vv. 21-26).

The duty of the subject of the kingdom is to conserve and sustain his own life and the life of others. Rash anger is heart murder (v. 22).

3. As to organized life (vv. 27-32).

The family is the unit of society. The two awful sins against the family are (1) Adultery, (2) Divorce.

4. As to oaths (vv. 33-37).

Whatever is more than the simple form of affirmation or denial comes of evil.

5. As to behavior toward those who do not recognize the laws of the kingdom (vv. 38-48).

(1) Not revengeful (vv. 39, 40).

Turning the other cheek after being smitten, means, after one insult, permit another without revenge. (2) Willingness to do more than is required (v. 41). If compelled to go one mile, go two miles with the one thus compelling you. (3) Be charitable (v. 42). Our hearts should always be open, ready to give to all. (4) Love enemies (vv. 43-48). Love to them consists in: a. Blessing them that curse us. b. Doing good to them that hate us. c. Praying for those who spitefully use us.

Consciousness of Duty

In every heart there is a consciousness of some duty or other required of it; that is the will of God. He that would be saved must get up and do that will—if it be but to sweep a room or make an apology, or pay a debt.—George MacDonald.

Entering Heaven's Gates

Heaven's gates are not so high as kings' palaces; they that enter there must get upon their knees.—Daniel Webster.

Get poisons out of system. . . .

Doctors know that this modern scientific laxative works efficiently in smaller doses because you chew it. Safe and mild for old and young.

Feen-a-mint FOR CONSTIPATION

It is unfortunate that a youth has to sow wild oats before he can learn how worthless the crop is.

Don't neglect a COLD

DISTRESSING cold in chest or throat—that so often leads to something serious—generally responds to good old Musterole with the first application. Should be more effective if used once every hour for five hours.

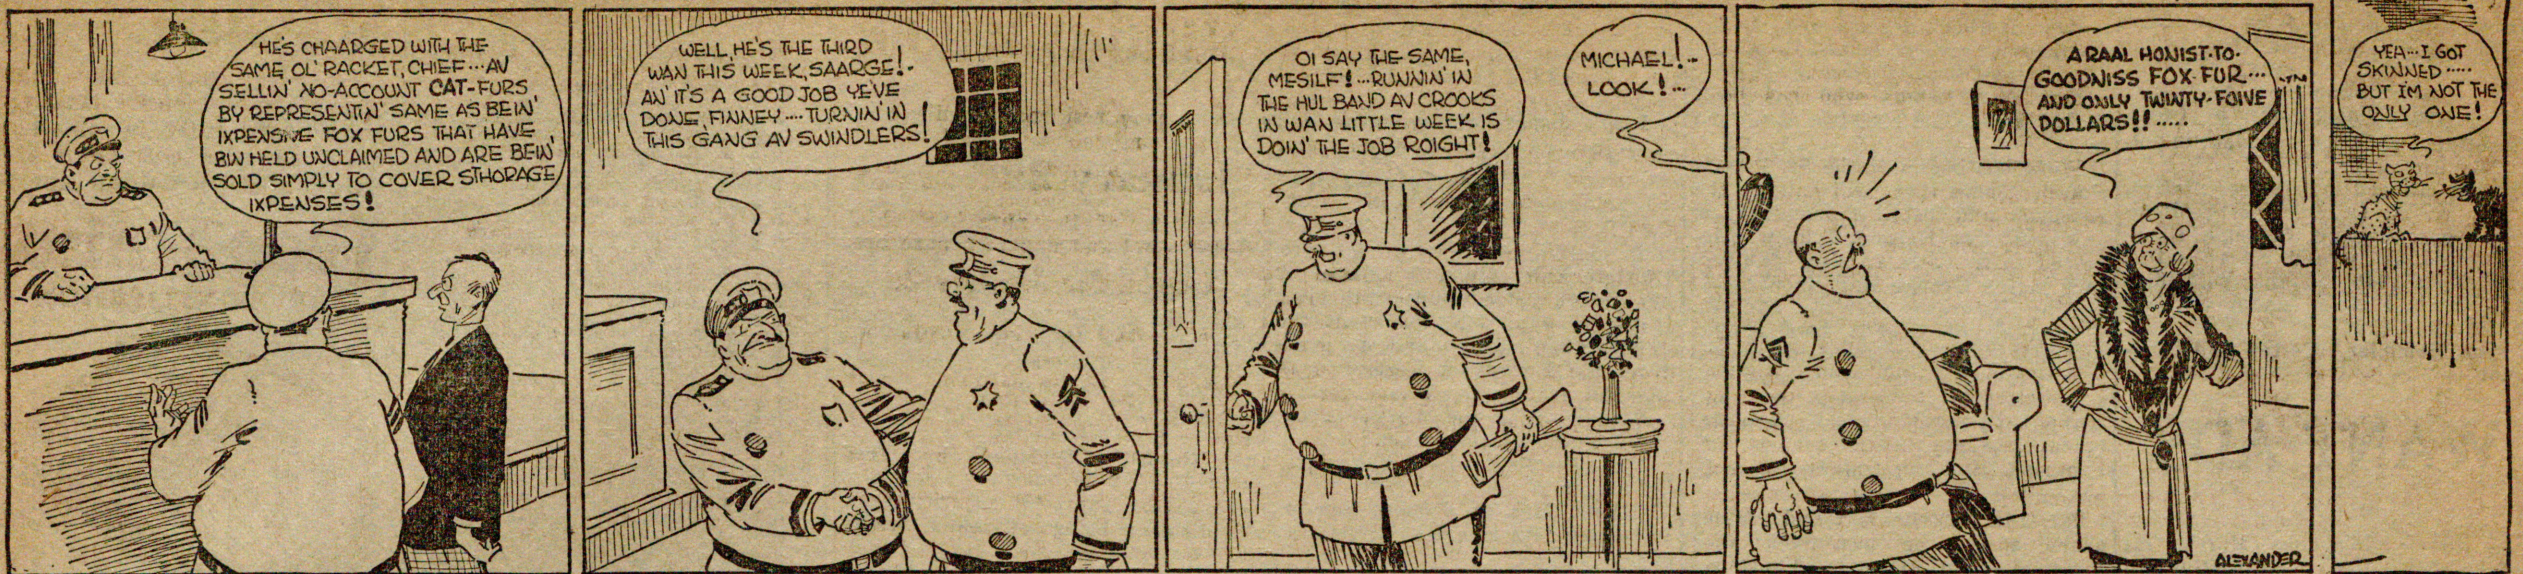

Working like the trained hands of a masseur, this famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other helpful ingredients brings relief naturally. It penetrates and stimulates blood circulation, helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses. Keep Musterole handy—jars and tubes.

His Accidental End

There are all sorts of ways of putting things, and some sound much better than others. For example, there is the case of the man of whom Lord Coleridge used to tell, whose father was hanged for highway robbery. Some one asked him how his father died. "Sir," said he "he fell from a scaffold outside Newgate while he was talking to a clergyman."—Youth's Companion.

Rations for Fighters

During the World war the German soldiers were supplied with ten and coffee without milk. Small rations of rum and arrack were furnished to troops in field and camp. These rations were given out in the evening to be mixed with the tea. Fifteen to twenty men received one bottle. In times of great physical exertion, the allowance of sugar was increased.

Important Waterway

The Suez canal, opened in 1869, has a length of 101 miles, and a minimum width of 147 feet, 8 inches. The maximum draught of water allowed for vessels using the canal is 32 feet. The average time for transit through the canal is 15 hours 20 minutes. The canal is owned by a company, and Great Britain holds a controlling interest in the company.

Honor Washington's Alone

James Monroe received all but one of the electoral votes in 1820. An elector from New Hampshire voted for John Quincy Adams in order that no President other than George Washington should have the honor of receiving a unanimous vote.

Legal Phraseology

Escrow is a writing which has been fully executed but which has been placed in the keeping of a third party, to be held by him until such time as the specified conditions under which the instrument was prepared have been fulfilled.

To Re-Erect Temple

A temple on the Acropolis of Selinus in Italy is to be re-erected. Originally it was 230 feet long by 85 feet wide. Six columns decorated the front, 18 the side. This particular temple occupied the most prominent place on the Acropolis. To whom it was dedicated is not known.

* SPRAYING THE THROAT TO KEEP SPRING COLDS AWAY *

Two American scientists, Dr. Alexis Carrel and Dr. Henry D. Dakin, are responsible for the discovery of the Carrel-Dakin solution, which reduced infection of wounds from seventy-five to one percent. In its concentrated stabilized form, the Carrel-Dakin solution is known as zonite to the layman. Although non-poisonous and non-caustic it is the most powerful of germicides and when used daily for spraying the throat will kill any germs that may enter the mouth. The upper photo shows a dreaded gas attack on the battlefield. The lower photo shows a zonite attack against any germs that may have entered the mouth. A daily spraying of the throat will ward off colds. (Herbert Photos, N. Y.)

TRANSATLANTIC
TELEPHONE HAS WIDESPREAD USE

Ocean-spanning Service Utilized in Unique Ways for Business and Social Calls

Who uses the transatlantic telephone?

A New York evening newspaper recently asked the question impersonally, saying that reports of big deals in rubber, sugar, and flour are often the outcome of telephone calls from the United States to Europe; or that an American financier in Paris has employed the telephone to keep in touch with his stockbrokers in New York; that a Wall Street speculator in foreign exchange has been able, by conversation with London or Berlin, to reap a handsome profit.

The newspaper story, stated that such instances tell only half the story, for actually a large proportion of the transatlantic telephone calls are social in nature. For example, an American sportsman telephones to a London friend, asking him to arrange a fortnight of grouse hunting in the Scottish Highlands. Tourists growing lonely in continental hotels, telephone their family an ocean away. Not so long ago, the wife of an American shopkeeper, associated with her husband in business, went abroad for the first time. Her husband asked her to call on some business associates while in France, and to facilitate this, wrote down their names and addresses in a notebook. Subsequently, he received a message that the notes were lost, but nothing daunted, he put in a telephone call from an eastern city to his wife in Paris and read the names to her in four minutes of telephonic conversation. Another New Yorker, talking recently to a friend at the Savoy in London, distinctly heard "Big Ben" booming the hour.

The public is always interested when notables make use of the service, and there have been many such, including King Alfonso of Spain, King Albert of Belgium and people whose names are famous in the political, literary and business world. S. Parker Gilbert, Agent General of Reparations, used the transatlantic telephone from Washington to confer with his Paris representatives. William A. Brady, Jr., when he made his London debut recently as Director of the English premiere of "The Road to Rome," had among his listeners in his father and mother in their New York home. Harry H. Frazer, Broadway theatrical producer, gravely ill in France, telephoned to New York for his doctor—probably the longest call ever made for a doctor. When Miss Helen Willis, American tennis star, announced her engagement, a London evening newspaper interviewed her via the transatlantic telephone service and was thus able to publish a confirmation of the engagement ahead of any other Sunday newspaper.

The transatlantic telephone service is often an agent of good cheer. A Florida newspaper recently told how the transatlantic telephone brought joy to a seventy-year-old father in Stockholm, Sweden, when he received a call from his daughter in Tampa. Father and daughter had not met for twenty years, but the thrill of their first conversation in that time reached its climax when his two granddaughters, aged twelve and fourteen years, said "Hello, Grandfather" over the thousands of miles of land and ocean.

Great "Third Estate"

The "Third Estate" in French history was that part of the nation that belonged neither to the nobility nor the clergy; in other words, the common people who finally brought about the great revolution.

A TELEPHONE MAN
OVER FIFTY YEARS

He Celebrates 89th Birthday
by a Visit to Edison
at Florida Home.

MR. JOHN K. BUTLER

MANY years ago, John K. Butler, then a lad in his teens and employed as a Western Union Telegraph operator in Boston, used to send Morse code to Thomas A. Edison in New York, another youthful knight of the key, who was destined to become one of the world's famous. But they never met.

Recently, Mr. Butler, sojourning in Florida, decided to celebrate his 89th birthday by calling upon Mr. Edison at his home at Ft. Myers. He found the wizard of Menlo Park protected by a vigilant guard but a hastily scribbled note brought him entrance to the great man's presence, and the two old-timers had a long talk which ended only when Mr. Butler had to leave to catch a train.

After working as a telegraph operator for about 18 years, Mr. Butler joined the telephone organization when Dr. Bell and his associates began the pioneer work of exploiting the telephone commercially, and he has remained with the Bell System continuously for more than half a century.

TELEPHONE FIRST-AID
TRAINING SAVES LIFE

Telephone workers who take the First Aid course offered throughout the Bell System, often have the opportunity of using the knowledge thus obtained to save human lives right outside the realm of their regular duties. They are always alert and always ready to give aid when necessary.

Herbert C. Murphy, a Boston installer, was at work in an apartment house in Roxbury, Mass., when the janitor of the building called his attention to a strong odor of illuminating gas in another apartment. Upon investigation, a woman was found on the floor in the kitchen. She was unconscious and not breathing, and the room was full of gas. After shutting off the gas, opening the windows and calling for an ambulance, the installer gave the woman artificial respiration for about ten minutes, when she started to breathe faintly. She was later removed to the hospital, but if it had not been for the First Aid knowledge on the part of the telephone installer, her life would not have been saved.

Cameos

The word "cameo" is not the name of a gem. It is merely a method of cutting. In other words, any hard substance or gem can be made into a cameo, although usually onyx, sardonyx, agate and ivory are used.
